The officers and men suffer so much from the cold that when relieved from outpost duty they invariably get drunk. The officers set the example to the men since they are that they are not allowed

RUSSIAN HORDE IS MYTH, SAYS BELLOC

An officer, Lieut. Górzky, in command of a detachment of fifty men was ordered to a village on the front. On the way he halted his men for a drink and had several himself. A non-commissioned officer who marched ahead to the village where they were going. Lieut. Gororzky, whose precautions inevitable result that they were cut to pieces and only eight escaped.

A Rumanian military commission purposely sent to Italy purchased with the consent of the Government immense quantities of war material and munitions, which have already been delivered and shipped at Brindisi en route for Rumania via Salonica. The delivery of the remaining engagements has been contracted for next April.

During the trials of hand grenades supplied by the gunpowder factory at Segni, owing to an accidental explosion the Rumanian military attaché at Rome, Major Cernovodeanu, was killed.

Evidence Against Saxen Private

Mr. Bellou was called by the prosecution in the street or club game has the very bad count. Every newsmonger has of course its military critic, who labors hard to reach the public by his lessons to the young men, also to calibrate it as to the operations at the front. It is to be said that any of these gentlemen are likely to make an abiding name for himself.

Having been accepted by the London public as the most interesting of the journalistic strategists, Mr. Bellou has now widened the field of his operations and his lectures at the Queen's Hall are a popular feature of London's war life.

Mr. Bellou was unfortunate in his PARIS, Feb. 27.—A French court-martial sitting at Rennes has sentenced Carl Vogelsang, a private of the Twentieth Saxon Infantry, to a term of six years' imprisonment, military degradation and death on conviction of pilfering, arson and of killing French wounded before he was captured. The chief evidence against him was furnished by his own diary.

He denied killing wounded but admitted the pilfering and arson charges, saying he had acted under orders of his officers.

He defended himself by saying that he was not a soldier, but a student, and that he had been taken prisoner by the French. He said that he had been taken prisoner by the French and that he had been taken prisoner by the French.

death by a court-martial on a charge of desertion. The court-martial of Holt was the last of its kind in the Canadian regiments during the Rumanian invasion in 1913.

A major and fifteen lieutenants who were killed on similar charges were named.

To Kick the Devil Into the River.
Holt, III, Feb. 27. The Holy Roll, "The Devil's Own Game," says that the devil is a very cunning fellow, and that he will do anything to get his own way. He will even go so far as to make a man believe that he is a saint, and that he is doing good. But the devil is a liar, and he will always be found out in the end. The only way to win the game is to be true to God, and to do good to all men.

gurgled another of their crusades against sin at Grand Tower and it is reported that their efforts this time will be directed to sinking the dead into the Mississippi River. Two of the younger leaders of the eccentric sect will be assisted by two Holy Roller veterans.
